

More Information about JADARA

The journal is fully online and can be accessed by clicking <http://repository.wcsu.edu/jadara/>

You will be asked to log-in or create an account. You will need to ensure your membership and email address is up to date with ADARA in order to verify your credentials. Please contact ADARA National Office to update your email address.

If you are accessing the journal via an institutional subscription, you will need to ensure your institution's IP address is up-to-date with ADARA. Please contact ADARA National Office to update your IP address. All updated IP addresses will automatically access all journals online without signing in.

Subscriptions

Subscription rates are available mainly for libraries and universities, but individuals who do not wish to join ADARA may also subscribe. A subscriber is entitled only to published issues of the JADARA and receive none of the benefits associated with membership in ADARA.

Article Submissions

For the professionals seeking to submit an article for the JADARA publication, go to the JADARA website and click "Submit Article" on the left side of the screen.
